SHAMPOO TIPS

- Always use Natural shampoo to avoid allergy or skin burn reactions to the animal or yourself. Harsh chemical shampoo, dish soap, and human shampoo will cause skin and coat damage because ingredients and pH Balance are not designed for this purpose.
- Always use clean mixing bottles and make sure to daily wash with hot water and sterilize the mixing bottles with a tablespoon of chlorine bleach in a gallon of hot water. Then rinse until you cannot smell the bleach anymore. This will avoid contaminating the product and causing bad odor and coat irritation from contamination.
- Always be organized; each product should have its own marked and labeled mixing bottle.
- Always mix only what you will use for one day. This will make natural products more effective and not allow bacteria to form in the stagnant product. Bacteria will cause an irritating itch on the animals skin.
- Always brush the mats out if possible before applying shampoo so that the product can be applied thoroughly and effectively. This assures the coat and skin will be cleaned and treated to the best possible extent.
- Always rinse the shampoo completely out of the coat. This will ensure the best possible effect and prevent irritation or itching from shampoo residue. Rinse until clear water is streaming out of the coat (no suds, no bubbles, then rinse again).
- Always use natural, highly effective and safe flea products to avoid irritation and toxic contamination to animals, people, and the environment. Chemical pesticides can cause severe negative impact and some have even been banned by the EPA.
- Always use caution in the eyes when applying any products. Just a drop in the eyes of Veterinary-approved eye drops and pure clear Veterinary-approved mineral oil can be a great preventative. Harsh scrubbing in the eye area can cause damage and exacerbate the eye corner. Always consult a Veterinarian for any questions.
- Always dry the hair thoroughly all the way to the skin. This makes for a healthy coat, looks esthetically better, and is much easier to groom.
- Always apply natural flea products around the neck area, ear area, posterior area, and pads of the feet first. This prevents fleas from hiding and surviving in those areas as they sense the washing application.
